

Invisible Man

Every night in Berkeley, an average of 1100 men, women and children are homeless on our streets and need help.

There isn't one face of homelessness. The homeless are teenage runaways and battered women. They are the mentally ill and emotionally impaired. And they are the working poor who can't afford housing.

Since 1972, the Berkeley Emergency Food and Housing project (BEFHP) has been working to make sure the homeless are not invisible. BEFHP's mission is to not only ease the crisis of homelessness, but to end it. We are part of a national coalition to end homelessness in 10 years by moving people into treatment, jobs and housing.

Don't pretend they're invisible. Become a supporter of BEFHP today.
